

URGES FREIGHT "L" TO END CONGESTION ON THE WEST SIDE

Tomkins Proposes That N. Y. Central Control New Line, With City Taking It Later.

Declaring that "the terminal organization of the west side of Manhattan involves the opening and development of that part of the city which focuses the largest natural demand on the Central for up-to-date terminal facilities," Calvin Tomkins, Commissioner of Docks, has submitted to Mayor Gaynor and the Board of Estimate a lengthy document outlining plans for relieving the present congestion and asking for immediate action which will put his plans into effect.

His letter to the Mayor, dated Sept. 24, recites the laws passed in 1911, which empower the city to construct modern and adequate terminal facilities, looking especially toward a readjustment of the New York Central's franchises along the western streets in Lower Manhattan. After reciting the work already done by the Board of Estimate, Commissioner Tomkins submits his recommendations, which in effect are these:

An elevated freight railroad running through the western section of lower Manhattan, from the West Sixtieth street yards of the New York Central to Day street.

Connection with the elevated freight terminal to the car floats of the various railroads or connection with freight tunnels later to be constructed, joining with the freight yards in New Jersey.

The use of the site of the West Washington Market for the erection of piers that will accommodate 1,000-foot ships, and

The erection of piers north of Forty-second street, in the Hudson River, that will accommodate the greatest ships in the world.

PROPOSES THAT N. Y. CENTRAL CONTROL ELEVATED LINE.

Mr. Tomkins submits plans for the erection of the proposed elevated freight tracks and elevated freight terminal, which he wishes erected and controlled by the New York Central, for use by all common carriers. In regard to this he writes:

"The New York Central and its patrons are the dominant freight interests in this district. The other roads doing business here have so far provided for their wants that so long as their rivals are not better situated—it is their patrons rather than themselves who are most anxious to secure a modern freight terminal."

For that reason he proposes that the New York Central control the proposed elevated freight line "until the interests of other roads so increase in proportion, or questions of impartiality and effectiveness become so serious as to compel the city to operate directly or through an independent lessee."

Commissioner Tomkins adds, however, that it is perfectly practicable that the city should own and operate this elevated freight terminal without regard for the New York Central, except to provide for its traffic.

RECOMMENDS SITE FOR THE 1,000-FOOT PIERS.

The Commissioner recommends the immediate use of the water front to be released by the transfer of the West Washington Market as the appropriate place for the erection of 1,000-foot piers and extensive plans showing how this can be done, adding that additional 1,000 foot piers can be constructed in that district as soon as his new freight terminal shall free the railroads from the necessity of holding their present piers in this section of lower Manhattan. If, however, the Board of Estimate does not wish to build these 1,000-foot piers in lower Manhattan, Commissioner Tomkins submits plans for the erection of these docks north of Forty-second street, though he thinks the latter site would be too expensive and inconvenient.

His plans for elevated freight terminals take into consideration that the railroads ultimately will build freight tunnels, instead of bringing their freight cars into New York on car floats.

The present congestion in the western district of lower Manhattan, the Commissioner says, is so intolerable that business is being driven away.

Straus Wouldn't Accept Republican Nomination.

Oscar Straus has set all doubt at rest as to where he stands with regard to accepting endorsements as nominee for Governor. A wire received by him from Josiah T. Newcomb at Saratoga asking him if he would accept the endorsement of the Republican party has been promptly answered in the negative. Mr. Straus says he cannot accept a nomination from any party on a platform differing from that on which he was nominated and upon which he stands.

ARBUCKLE ESTATE TOTALS $30,357,790 FOR TWO HEIRS.

Business of Coffee King Is Valued at $28,421,348 and Real Estate at $509,841.

John J. Monahan, inheritance tax appraiser for Kings County, today filed an inventory of the estate of John Arbuckle, the coffee importer and sugar refiner, who died March 27, 1912.

The gross value of the estate is reported as $30,357,790.50, and the expenses of administration make the amount to be divided between the heirs, Mrs. Catherine Arbuckle Jamieson and Miss Christine Arbuckle, sisters of the deceased, $29,818,341. Fifty thousand dollars was paid to the executor, Miss Arbuckle and Charles Arbuckle Jamieson.

The business of the John Arbuckle Company is valued at $28,421,348, and the real estate, including the Hotel Margaret and the Arbuckle Building at No. 375 Fulton street, at $509,841, and the art collection at $24,203.

The estate is subject to a suit filed by John Arbuckle's former partners for the repayment of their share of the fines paid by them for undervaluing sugar imports.
